Papawai and Kaikokirikiri Trusts Amendment Bill

Private Bill

As reported from the Māori Affairs Committee

Commentary

Recommendation

The Māori Affairs Committee has examined the Papawai and Kaikokirikiri Trusts Amendment Bill and recommends that it be passed with the amendments shown.

Introduction

The Papawai and Kaikokirikiri Trusts Amendment Bill is a private bill, sponsored by Alastair Scott MP. The bill seeks to amend the Papawai and Kaikokirikiri Trusts Act 1943 so that it would:

- better describe the relationship between the Papawai and Kaikokirikiri Trusts Board, the Bishop of Te Upoko o Te Ika, and tangata whenua of Wairarapa
- establish a more robust nomination process for Board members
- provide fairer distribution of funds for tangata whenua of Wairarapa
- facilitate the long-term development of lands.

Language of the bill

We considered whether the bill should be enacted in te reo Māori as well as English. We support this in principle and note that it is an aspiration for all bills to be enacted in te reo Māori as well as English.

However, we accept that the practical difficulties and time constraints on this particular bill are too great to recommend enacting a te reo Māori version. This is because the original Act exists only in English, so the only way to give effect to an amending bill in both languages would be to re-enact the entire Act by introducing a new bill. This would considerably delay the reforms proposed by the current bill.

If this bill is enacted in English, the Board can still prepare a new private bill that re-enacts the entire Act in both languages for later introduction. Alternatively, the promoter of the bill can withdraw this bill, and the Board can prepare a new bill in both languages that re-enacts the entire Papawai and Kaikokirikiri Trusts Act 1943 with the changes included in this bill.

In the future, we recommend that sponsors of private bills consider introducing them as dual language bills.

Definition of tangata whenua of Wairarapa

We considered whether the definition of “tangata whenua of Wairarapa” in clause 4 of the bill should be amended so that it specifically mentions both iwi to which the bill applies (Rangitāne and Ngāti Kahungunu). The bill adopts a definition of “tangata whenua of Wairarapa” that does not specifically refer to either iwi.

We understand that, based on consultation in 2006, the Board considers that the wording proposed in the bill best embraces the historical kinship groups of the Wairarapa. Therefore, we do not recommend amending the definition.

Inconsistency with the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act 1990

Clause 5 of the bill would replace section 5 of the Act. It sets out circumstances in which the office of a member of the Board would become vacant. Such circumstances would include a member of the Board:

- becoming subject to a compulsory treatment order
- becoming a special patient under the Mental Health (Compulsory Assessment and Treatment) Act 1992
- having an order made about them under the Protection of Personal and Property Rights Act 1988.

The Attorney-General has issued a report under section 7 of the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act 1990 that concludes that clause 5 of the bill appears to be inconsistent with section 19(1): the right to be free from discrimination. Section 5 of the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act states that the rights and freedoms it contains are subject only to reasonable limits that can be demonstrably justified in a free and democratic society.

The Attorney-General states that the circumstances set out in clause 5 of the bill are not reasonable limits on the right to be free from discrimination because they use the existence of orders under these Acts to determine whether a person is capable to be a member of the Board. Compulsory treatment orders under the Mental Health Act are not meant to signify a lack of capacity, so it is not appropriate to use them in this way.

Although long-term orders under the Protection of Personal and Property Rights Act are designed to determine an individual’s capacity to carry out specific functions relating to their personal and property interests, the Protection of Personal and Property Rights Act also provides for short-term and interim orders that are not an appropriate measure of capacity. Clause 5 of the bill does not distinguish between these types of orders.

We recommend amending clause 5 so that it is consistent with the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act. We recommend removing new section 5(1)(e) and amending new section 5(1)(f) to limit it to orders made under section 31 of the Protection of Personal and Property Rights Act (appointment of a manager).

We also recommend inserting a new subsection (1A) to provide that, while a person is subject to a temporary order under section 30 of the Protection of Personal and Property Rights Act, they are treated as absent with the leave of the Board. This is consistent with the approach to similar provisions amended by the Disability (United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons With Disabilities) Act 2008 before New Zealand ratified the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities.

Term of office of Board members

Clause 5 of the bill would insert a new section 4A to specify the term of office of Board members. We recommend amending clause 5 to replace references to 2015 with references to 2017 to ensure that the bill passes before the date referred to in new section 4A.

Investment of trust funds

Clause 13 would amend section 15 of the Act, which relates to investments. We note that the proposed new section 15(1) appears to restrict investments to investments in land. Because this would be contrary to the Board's intentions as outlined in its submission, we recommend amending clause 13 so the Board would have flexibility in its investments and would not be restricted to investing only in land.
