

Water Services Entities Amendment Bill

Government Bill

As reported from the Governance and Administration Committee

Commentary

Recommendation

The Governance and Administration Committee has examined the Water Services Entities Amendment Bill and recommends by majority that it be passed. We recommend all amendments by majority.

Some of us do not agree with the amendments proposed or the rationale provided for those proposed amendments. We have provided more detail about our differing views later in this commentary.

Introduction

In December 2022, the Water Services Entities Act 2022 was passed, legally establishing four water services entities (WSEs). These would assume responsibility for delivering New Zealand's water services beginning 1 July 2024. The Act specified the purpose and objectives of the entities, their governance and accountability arrangements, ownership model and legal form, and obligations to Te Tiriti o Waitangi and Te Mana o te Wai.

This bill would amend the Act. The amendments would give effect to the Government's announcements in April and May 2023, refocusing the reform of water services. The Act is one of several pieces of legislation¹ that aim to improve water services regulation and infrastructure to ensure that New Zealanders have access to safe, reliable, and affordable water services.

¹ In addition to the Water Services Entities Act 2022, the Water Services Legislation Bill and the Water Services Economic Efficiency and Consumer Protection Bill have been considered by the Finance and Expenditure Committee, which has reported back to the House.

The bill is an omnibus bill and would amend a range of legislation, in addition to the Act. The bill would amend the number of WSEs provided for by the Act, disestablishing the 4 WSEs and replacing them with 10. It introduces staggered establishment arrangements for the new entities. The bill amends representation on the WSEs' regional representative groups, so that every territorial authority is represented. Once established, the WSEs would be responsible for delivering water services, in place of local authorities.

The bill amends transitional arrangements for the WSEs, including the responsibilities of local authorities for planning, reporting, and rating during the establishment period of a WSE. It also provides for some additional arrangements to support staff retention to WSEs. The bill would provide for a new mechanism called community priority statements that would enable community groups to indicate their views and priorities concerning a water body of interest. Community priority statements would be provided to a WSE's regional representative group.

The bill would introduce other mechanisms including:

- a locally-led merger process to enable WSEs to merge if their regional representative groups agreed to do so
- a Water Services Entities Funding Agency
- shared services arrangements, which entities may be directed to implement or which they may enter into voluntarily.

If enacted, the bill would become the final piece of legislation aimed at reforming the delivery of New Zealand's water services.

Truncated process

We note that the time frame allowed for public submissions and select committee scrutiny was extremely short. The bill was referred to us on Thursday 23 June 2023, with a report-back date of Thursday 27 July 2023. Many submitters commented on the bill's short report-back date and the limited amount of time for people to prepare written and oral submissions. Some of us consider that the truncated period for consideration hindered our ability to effectively scrutinise the bill.

Legislative scrutiny

As part of our consideration of the bill, we have examined its consistency with principles of legislative quality. We have no issues regarding the legislation's design to bring to the attention of the House.

Proposed amendments

This commentary covers the main amendments we recommend to the bill as introduced. We do not discuss minor, technical, or consequential amendments.

Definitions

We received several submissions that expressed confusion about the definition of “water body” in relation to community priority statements. Clause 16 of the bill provides for community priority statements to be made about a water body in the service area of a WSE. The statements could be made by any persons with an interest in how water services are provided in that service area.

We consider that providing definitions for “water body” and “water” in the bill would make it clearer how provisions relating to community priority statements are intended to apply. These statements are intended to be made in relation to any body of water—whether freshwater, seawater, or other—that the activities of a WSE might affect. We note that this would reflect similar arrangements for Te Mana o te Wai statements, which can be made by mana whenua whose rohe or takiwā includes a water body in the service area, or whose interests in the service area are recognised in a Treaty settlement Act.

Section 6 of the Water Services Entities Act 2022 states that the definition of “Te Mana o te Wai” applies to “water”, as defined in section 2(1) of the Resource Management Act 1991 (RMA). Te Mana o te Wai refers to the vital importance of water. The RMA provides a definition for “water” that does not include “water in any form while in any pipe, tank or cistern”. Some submitters told us that it would not be appropriate for water services legislation to determine whether water has mana depending on whether it is piped. We agree that Te Mana o te Wai should apply to all types of water. Therefore, we recommend inserting clause 4B to include definitions of “water” and “water body” in section 6 of the Act, and to amend the definition of “Te Mana o te Wai” to refer to these definitions so that it applies to water as defined by our recommended terms.

Establishment dates of water service entities

Clause 5 of the bill would insert new section 6A into the Act. It would provide that the Northland and Auckland Water Services Entity’s operational establishment date is 1 July 2024. The bill would not set operational establishment dates for the remaining entities, but rather would enable them to be set by Order in Council at the start of a financial quarter from 1 July 2024 to 1 July 2026. Several submitters were concerned about the range of possible operational establishment dates that the bill allows to be set for most WSEs. They noted that territorial authorities would have to plan, finance, and provide water services until a date that is not yet set by an Order. Although we acknowledge that a range of dates provides flexibility for the operational establishment of WSEs, we share submitters’ concerns. We consider that it is important for councils to have more certainty about operational establishment dates, given the pressures they face in continuing to provide water services.

To give effect to these considerations, we recommend:

- amending proposed new section 6A(5) to require that, once an establishment date has been set by Order in Council, this power can only be re-exercised in situations where it would take effect before the previous establishment date and is recommended due to exceptional circumstances

- inserting new section 6A(5A) to require that Orders in Council made under new section 6A, setting WSEs' establishment dates, must be made within 6 months from the commencement of that new section
- introducing new section 6A(5B) to require that, before recommending an Order in Council be made, the Minister must engage with territorial authority owners and mana whenua, in accordance with section 206 of the Act.

Section 206 of the Act relates to engagement and requires that a WSE or the Minister consult or seek input or feedback on a proposal.

Requirement for the Minister to report on engagement regarding the establishment of WSEs

We note that the engagement requirements in section 206 of the Act do not set out how a WSE or the Minister should respond to input or feedback received through consultation. We recommend adding clause 21A to insert new section 206A. Our proposed section 206A would require the WSE or the Minister to prepare a report on how input and feedback was considered and incorporated into the specified document. It would also require the report to be published on an internet site maintained by, or on behalf of, the WSE, in a readily accessible format.

Terms of office for establishment boards and chief executives

Schedule 1 of the Act contains transitional arrangements, transferring the provision of water services from territorial authorities to WSEs. As introduced, clause 25 would insert new subpart 1A into Schedule 1 of the Act to disestablish the existing four WSEs.

Clause 3(f) of Schedule 1 sets out that board members of WSEs hold their positions for the establishment period or for any shorter period stated in the notice of appointment. In contrast, clause 4(3) of Schedule 1 provides that establishment chief executives are appointed for a term that ends up until 24 months after the establishment date, unless that term is earlier terminated.

We consider that the approach for appointing establishment boards should be similar to the process for appointing establishment chief executives. We recommend amending clause 3 of Schedule 1 to provide that the term of office for a member of a board appointed by the Minister during the establishment period would end 24 months after the establishment date, unless terminated earlier. This would provide a default of continuity in the board from the establishment date to the WSE providing services.

Clause 25(4) of the bill would replace clause 4 of Schedule 1 of the Act to provide that the establishment chief executive would be appointed by the establishment board. There would be an exception for the establishment chief executive of the Northern WSE (the former entity that was established by the Water Services Entities Act 2022) who would be appointed as the establishment chief executive of the new Northland and Auckland WSE.

We consider that the existing approach in clause 4(3) of Schedule 1, as described above, should be reinstated. We recommend inserting new clause 4(2A) into Schedule 1 to do this. This would provide a default scenario where there is continuity for the chief executive from establishment of the WSE through to the provision of water services.

Local engagement in water services entities

The bill would introduce a number of amendments relating to local representation and engagement in the provision of water services. We consider it important to maintain local voice in providing water services. Many submitters commented on the limited time provided for consultation with affected groups during the process of legislating for water services reform. We consider it important to ensure that local communities are actively involved throughout the reform and transition phases. We suggest various amendments to improve these mechanisms for local engagement, as outlined below.

Membership of regional representative groups

Clause 10 would amend section 27 of the Act which relates to the establishment and membership of a regional representative group (RRG) for WSEs. RRGs are responsible for setting out their relevant entity's strategic direction and performance expectations. They comprise an equal number of territorial authority and mana whenua representatives.²

The bill would require every RRG to include a representative from each territorial authority owner in the entity's service area. There would be no maximum number of representatives in an RRG. We note that the Finance and Expenditure Committee, during its consideration of the Water Services Entities Bill, considered what the number of regional representatives should be on an RRG. In its report, the committee acknowledged the importance of increasing local voice and representation and recommended that there should be no limit to the number of members on each RRG.

We consider that the drafting of clause 10 is not necessarily clear that each entity's regional representative group must include a representative from each territorial authority owner in the entity's service area. For clarity, we recommend amending clause 10 to replace the word "a" with "at least 1".

Composition of regional representative groups

Clause 24 would repeal section 210(3) and (4) of the Water Services Entities Act 2022 to remove the requirement that each RRG consist of no less than 12 and no more than 18 members.

The membership of each WSE's RRG would be provided for in the constitution of each entity. We consider that the first constitution for the Northland and Auckland WSE should provide that its RRG has the following composition:

² As required by section 27(3) of the Water Services Entities Act 2022.

- four Auckland Council representatives
- four mana whenua representatives of Tāmaki Makaurau
- one representative each from Far North District Council, Kaipara District Council, and Whangārei District Council
- three mana whenua representatives of Te Tai Tokerau.

We recommend that clause 24 be amended to replace section 210(3) to provide that the first constitution of the Northland and Auckland WSE be set out in regulation with its RRG to have the above composition. We consider that this would provide certainty to territorial authority owners and mana whenua representatives in relation to the Northland and Auckland WSE’s RRG.

We also recommend replacing section 210(4) to provide that later modifications to this constitution could be made, if desired. We note that section 210 is transitional, and the composition of the WSEs can be changed in amendments to, or replacements of, the model constitution. We were advised that the Northland and Auckland WSE’s model constitution will provide an example for other entities’ constitutions.

Eligibility to make community priority statements

We consider that the bill is not clear about who is eligible to submit a community priority statement. We note that groups who are not based in a WSE’s service area may still have an interest in a water body in that area. This could include unincorporated bodies, or national organisations, whose purpose is or includes a matter related to a water body in that area. We think that such groups should be able to provide a community priority statement.

Accordingly, we recommend amending clause 16 to insert new section 145AB. This would set out the meaning of an “eligible person” as a person who:

- has a connection with the entity’s service area; and
- has an interest in how water services are provided in that service area, or in how other activities of the entity do or could affect or relate to the water body, or in both.

Our proposed amendment would also insert section 145AB(2) to make it clear that an unincorporated body is only an eligible person if both the following apply:

- their main place of activities is in the WSE’s service area
- has an interest in how water services are provided in that service area, or in how other activities of the entity do or could affect or relate to the water body, or in both.

Our proposed amendment would also insert section 145AB(2) to make it clear that an unincorporated body is only an eligible person if both the following apply:

- their main place of activities is in the WSE’s service area
- their purpose is, or includes, for any reason, any matter related to a water body in the WSE’s service area.

Regional representative groups setting and notifying deadlines for community priority statements

The bill as introduced provides that community priority statements could be made at any time. We realise that considering these statements may entail the use of significant administrative and financial resources. However, we acknowledge the need for communities to express their views on water services.

We consider that a balance could be achieved by giving RRGs the power to set a deadline for receipt of community priority statements. We therefore recommend inserting section 145AC to let RRGs determine a submission period for community groups, including publicly notifying a deadline for statements.

We also recommend amending section 145B to make clear that statements must be made in accordance with any deadline set and notified by the entity's RRG. Also, if made after any current deadline, they must be considered to be received before the next current deadline.

Māori representation in consumer forum engagement

Section 207 of the Act, which relates to consumer engagement forums, states that forums must achieve "equitable and reasonable representation" of various communities in their service area. Although modelled on the composition of RRGs and of regional advisory panels, which require mana whenua representation, consumer forums are not required to have mana whenua representatives. We consider that consumer forums should also have mandated mana whenua representation.

We recommend amending clause 22 to amend section 207(4) so that it requires a WSE's chief executive to ensure that its consumer forums achieve equitable and reasonable representation of metropolitan, provincial, and rural communities, and mana whenua, in its service area.

Shared services arrangements

Clause 7 would amend section 13 of the Act, relating to the functions of WSEs. As introduced, the amendment would make it a function of WSEs to be able to enter into shared service arrangements. We were advised that enabling shared services arrangements would make the 10-entity model more efficient. For example, in areas such as procurement, it would be useful to share resourcing capabilities between entities to reduce pressures on smaller entities.

We propose various amendments to improve the workability of shared services arrangements, and discuss some of them below.

Ministerial direction

Clause 15 would insert new subpart 2A of Part 4, which would enable the Minister to direct WSEs to comply with requirements for shared services and other stated purposes set out in the bill. Most submitters were supportive of WSEs being able to be required to share services provided to WSEs. This was particularly so for smaller councils which consider it an opportunity to recapture benefits of cost efficiency, some of which they would have lost during the move from 4 WSEs to 10.

In contrast, some submitters expressed concern about clause 15 as introduced. In particular, they noted that the provision could give the Minister too much power over WSEs. We agree that the ministerial powers enabled by this clause are quite broad. However, we consider that ministerial powers to direct shared service arrangements are an important part of the wider reform, because of their potential to enable more cost-efficient arrangements. For example, a Minister could direct larger entities to enter into agreements with smaller entities, which the larger entity might otherwise not have done, as there might be no significant benefits for them.

We recommend narrowing the Minister's powers in clause 15, new section 137A by making clear that this section would only apply to directions for shared services provided to WSEs. In addition, we also recommend inserting into section 137A:

- subsection (2A), stating that a direction must not be inconsistent with the operating principles of WSEs set out in section 14 of the Act
- subsection (2B) requiring that a direction for shared services arrangements that directs WSEs about how to give effect to the direction may only be made before 1 July 2026.

We note that restricting directions for shared services of that kind beyond this date would provide additional assurance that the Minister could not interfere with how the entity gives effect to a direction. We recommend adding clause 25(9) to insert clause 8A(4) into Schedule 1. This would set out that a direction made under that clause and approved by the Minister before an entity's establishment period would expire and be revoked on 1 July 2027.

We also recommend amending section 137B to insert subsection (1A). This would require the Minister to consider input or feedback from stakeholders relating to the proposed direction. We believe this would provide further safeguards ensuring that directions are made in good faith. We note that this would not affect the amendments we recommend to section 206, as discussed previously in this commentary.

We do not consider it necessary to further specify the types of shared service arrangements that may or may not be directed and entered into, other than specifying a direction's purposes and activities. We expect the purposes for which a direction may be given, and activities covered, as specified under section 137A(1) and (3) as amended, to be interpreted appropriately and in good faith in giving directions to WSEs that they share services provided to them.

We also recommend changes to clause 8A of Schedule 1 of the Act to make it clear that a shared services direction under section 137A:

- may be given by being approved by the Minister before or during a WSE's establishment period
- may come into force at the start of, or otherwise during, that period.

Purpose of locally-led mergers

In the bill as introduced, WSEs would be able to merge. Schedule 2 of the bill would insert new Schedule 2A into the Act, providing for a request for, preparation of, and implementation of a merger proposal. A merger proposal must be made to the relevant entity's RRG.

We think Schedule 2A does not provide sufficient guidance to support a locally-led merger process as the bill intends. Several submitters commented that mergers would reduce local input. We consider it important to maintain local involvement in the decision-making process of a merger proposal. We wish to ensure that decisions regarding merger proposals are well informed.

Therefore, we recommend inserting clause 1AA into new Schedule 2A to specify that the purpose of the WSE's merger provisions is to achieve the Act's purpose by enabling mergers that "improve water services governance".

We also recommend inserting clause 1AB to enable entities to merge only if every entity in the merger shares some of its boundary with that of at least one other entity in the merger. For the purpose of new clause 1AB, a WSE's boundary is the boundary of the area identified in Schedule 2 as the service area of the WSE. We note that territorial authorities that extend across water bodies would comply with the requirements for shared boundaries.

Decision-making on merger proposal

Clause 13 of new Schedule 2A relates to decision-making on merger proposals. As introduced, clause 13(3)(b) would set a threshold that at least 50 percent of RRG representatives present and voting must agree to implement a merger. We consider that the threshold proposed is not high enough to represent a majority. We note that section 30 of the Water Services Entities Act 2022 requires decisions made by an RRG to be agreed by 75 percent of the regional representatives present and voting. We recommend replacing clause 13(3) so that a 75 percent majority of representatives present and voting would always be required, as already provided for in section 30 of the Act.

Criteria or guidance for merger

We are concerned that the bill offers no guidance on factors that WSEs may wish to consider when deciding whether to merge. We note that a merger would raise significant policy considerations and could have financial implications for the amount that consumers pay for water services.

We consider that the bill should provide a list of factors that an RRG must consider when deciding whether a merger proposal should be implemented. We recommend inserting clause 13A into new Schedule 2A to list the factors that an RRG must have regard to when making such a decision.

Effect of mergers and disestablishment of water services entities

Clause 21 of Schedule 2A provides that a merger implementation plan would be given effect by an Order in Council, made on the recommendation of the Minister. An Order in Council made to give effect to a merger implementation plan would also dis-establish the WSEs that are part of the merger.

We think that the bill should require an Order in Council that gives effect to a merger implementation plan to include stated matters related to the merger (for example, amendments to section 3(2)(a) to reflect the total number of entities after the merger). This would ensure that the stated aspects of the merger are given effect to and have a statutory basis reflected in the Act or the Order.

We recommend inserting clause 21A into proposed Schedule 2A to specifically state what transitional provisions about the effect of a merger are brought into operation by implementing Orders in Council made under clause 21.

We also recommend inserting clause 21B to provide that the disestablishment of a WSE would not by itself affect any of the following matters:

- any decision made, or anything done or omitted to be done by a disestablished entity in performing or exercising its functions, powers, or duties under any legislation
- any proceedings commenced against a disestablished entity
- any other matter or thing arising out of a disestablished entity's exercise or performance of its functions, powers, or duties under any legislation.

Any designations, permits, or consents made or issued by a merging WSE would continue in force and be deemed to have been made by the new entity.

Employment transfer arrangements

Retention payments for the workforce

The bill as introduced would not amend existing staff transfer provisions outlined in Schedule 1 of the Act. We consider that the bill should address the pressures on employees during the transition period to the new WSEs.

Several submitters were concerned that the bill proposes amendments that would create uncertainty, disruption, and distraction for council staff due to the extended establishment period and uncertainty of individual entity establishment dates. We consider that staff retention affects determining when an entity will be established. We consider that providing retention payments to incentivise staff to continue to remain in their positions while local government organisations continue to provide water services over the extended establishment period, before transferring to their new positions in their local WSE, would be a useful tool to include in the legislation. We note that retention payments are commonly used in both the private and public sector to improve employee loyalty, or retain highly trained staff.

Therefore, we recommend inserting the following clauses into Schedule 1 of the Act as inserted by clause 25(14C) to support staff retention:

- new clause 27A(2) to make clear that a WSE, on or after its establishment, may make a one-time payment to an employee who has accepted an offer of employment from the chief executive of a WSE

- new clause 27A(3) to state that any retention payment made under the previous subclause may be made subject to lawful conditions.

Transitional arrangements

Section 22 of the Act requires chief executives to review employment positions during the establishment period of a WSE. Clause 23 requires chief executives to offer employees a position if their role primarily relates to or supports the delivery of water services.

We note that the change to WSE establishment processes proposed by the bill would create an anomaly whereby Watercare³ employees who live in the Waikato District and provide services to Waikato District Council would not transfer into the Waikato WSE. This is because the Northland and Auckland WSE would be established on 1 July 2024 and the existing provisions in the Act require the job offer to be made by this date. The bill proposes that the Waikato WSE be established later in the establishment window, so it would not exist on 1 July 2024.

To address this anomaly, we recommend inserting clause 23(1B) into Schedule 1 of the Act, as added by clause 25(14B) to enable the chief executive of the Department of Internal Affairs to approve an offer of employment made by an entity to employees of another entity.

Collective bargaining

The bill as introduced does not contain any provisions relating to collective bargaining. Schedule 1 of the Act sets out arrangements for collective bargaining over the transition period. However, we note that the amendments to entity establishment in the bill mean the transitional collective bargaining arrangements must be updated to reflect the longer transition period, where entities are legally established in a staggered fashion, rather than all on the same day.

Many submitters expressed concern about workers' rights, and stressed that multi-party collective bargaining should be allowed to take place before the establishment of the WSEs. Some submitters felt that employees under legislated job pathways could be disadvantaged if an entity transitioned at a later date. We consider it important that the bill provide for collective bargaining of employment agreements.

We recommend inserting clause 27C into Schedule 1 of the Act to:

- provide that a bargaining agent appointed by DIA's chief executive under clause 27C may represent a WSE by carrying out bargaining on behalf of the entity initiated by one or more unions under clause 28
- make clear that the bargaining agent may, without limitation, enter into a collective employment agreement on behalf of the entity in or after that collective bargaining

³ Watercare Services Limited provides water and wastewater services to the Auckland region.

- provide that any employment agreement negotiated and entered into by a bargaining agent who is representing a WSE would bind the represented entity on and after its establishment date but not stop that entity from varying or renegotiating the agreement
- make clear that this could cover multi-employer collective employment agreements across WSEs.

We propose that this clause would apply to a WSE:

- that has not yet been transitionally established under new section 11
- whose establishment chief executive has not been appointed
- whose chief executive has not been appointed.

However, after the appointment of an establishment chief executive of a WSE takes effect, a bargaining agent appointed under clause 27C may continue to represent that entity under clause 27C only if, and only to the extent that, the bargaining agent has a written authorisation to do so, provided by the establishment chief executive.

Ministerial direction for shared services in relation to employment relations

Clause 15 would insert section 137A(3) into the Act setting out what shared services could be directed by the Minister. Activities that could be covered by a direction include debt funding and management, information and communication technology, procurement and supply chain management, risk management and insurance, and workforce development and management. We consider that the Minister's ability to direct shared services should specifically apply in regards to employment relations.

Therefore, we recommend amending subsection (3)(e), to replace the term "management" with "employment relations".

Development contributions

Clause 35 would amend Schedule 1AA of the Local Government Act 2022. New clause 39 of Schedule 1AA relates to development contributions which are charged by councils to cover the cost of services and infrastructure for new developments. The Water Services Legislation Bill proposes that councils could apply these charges to any development needing consent before the establishment date. This bill proposes that development contributions would apply to territorial authorities in the service area of a WSE.

We recommend amending clause 29 of Schedule 1AA, to be inserted by clause 35(8), to clarify that development contributions may be made in relation to water services infrastructure.

National Party differing view

The National Party members oppose the select committee recommending the passage of the Water Services Entities Amendment Bill.

This bill was introduced shortly after the Government announced their three waters back down and is now quickly being rushed through the House before the end of this Parliament. For almost three years, the Labour Government presented their four-entity model as the only viable option to fix the universally recognised deficiencies with the status quo of water services delivery. According to them, only that model would present a solution, and all others should be disregarded. Ironically, this insistence was immediately abandoned once the tide of public opinion became evident, and this bill was introduced, fundamentally reshaping many of the aspects of the reform that the Government had previously considered “bottom lines”. Unfortunately, the core of the reform agenda remains and is still opposed by Kiwis, and because of this, National will not support it.

Councils own their water assets on behalf of their ratepayers, who have paid for them over generations and deserve a say in their operation. Maintaining council ownership of water assets must be the bottom line in any reform. Still, this bill strengthens these reforms’ commitment to strip local communities of local control and ownership of their water assets. The change this bill proposes, which takes the number of mega-entities from 4 to 10, is insufficient to ensure that the assets remain in local hands. The feedback from councils around the structure is that the number of entities is materially less important than the governance and ownership structure beneath them. Still, this aspect is unchanged in the transition between 4 and 10 entities.

National is pleased to see a commitment to ensure each council in the service area of an entity will have at least one seat on representation boards. This has long been something National has argued for, and a Supplementary Order Paper that would have done precisely this was rejected by Labour as part of the consideration of the Water Services Entities Bill when it passed through the House in 2022. We are glad to see the Government adopt National’s position on this.

Many submitters also raised concerns regarding the process for Te Mana o te Wai statements. National acknowledges the Māori interest in water; however, there is a significant difference between the recognition of that right, the Te Mana o te Wai framework, and the specific Te Mana o te Wai statements proposed in this bill. National does not support the framework for issuing statements specifically, as we do not feel this is the appropriate way to recognise the Māori interest in water and is unnecessarily divisive and unworkable.

The Minister for Local Government made commitments as part of his changes to three waters to expand the ability to make submissions to water services entities to other interested parties, the result of which is this bill’s “community priority statements”. These statements are significantly weaker than Te Mana o te Wai statements, which “must be considered” by Water Services Entities, as opposed to community priority statements, which “may be considered”. This apparent discrepancy between these two types of statements makes one significantly less influential than the other, defeating the purpose of expanding statements in the first place. As part of the consideration of the Water Services Entities Bill in 2022, National proposed a Supplementary Order Paper that would have expanded the groups of individuals who can submit

Te Mana o te Wai statements to include community groups and other interested parties. This would have represented a far more equitable way to ensure community voices are heard. While we were initially happy to see a potential expansion of Te Mana o te Wai to capture all individuals interested in water, we are disappointed that this has yet to occur meaningfully.

Many councils also raised concerns about the entity borders, particularly at the top of the South Island. Entities boundaries, as currently drawn, place some communities in entities different than ones where their council has representation. Officials have explained that this inconsistency between local government and WSE's boundaries is due to different iwi boundaries. While National acknowledges the Māori interest in water, we believe that borders should be consistent with local council boundaries.

Direct contact with a person's council regarding water services is crucial for individuals and communities. The ability to communicate directly ensures that ratepayers can voice their concerns, report issues, and seek prompt resolutions. When people face problems with their water supply or quality, having a clear line of communication with the council empowers them to take proactive measures. Moreover, direct contact enables a sense of accountability from the council's end, ensuring that they are responsive and attentive to the community's needs. This accountability is further strengthened when ratepayers know exactly who to approach, making it easier to address specific issues.

Conversely, when individuals are unclear about whom to contact or who is accountable for water services, it can lead to delays in resolving problems. This lack of clarity may deter people from reporting issues altogether, leading to potential health hazards, environmental concerns, and financial burdens for the community. Thus, facilitating transparent and direct communication with the council is vital to safeguarding the well-being and interests of residents while fostering a sense of trust and cooperation between the authorities and the public they serve. This is significantly more difficult when there are inconsistencies between local government and WSE's boundaries.

This is one example of where the extremely short select committee consideration of this bill was problematic. Issues around boundaries require a high level of consideration and attention to detail that the process allowed by the Government could not accommodate. This bill was read a first time on 22 June, with a report-back date of 27 July, giving the committee barely a month to consider it and submitters even less time to prepare their submissions. Many submitters, especially councils, highlighted this need for more time to prepare submissions. Even councils who supported the reforms, in general, expressed their concern this shortened process made it very difficult for them to properly consider the bill and how these changes would affect their communities. This includes councils still focused on the aftermath of severe weather events earlier this year.

Granting local councils and communities adequate time to consider changes that impact them and make submissions is crucial for fostering democratic principles, ensuring transparency, and promoting informed decision-making. When proposed changes or policies affect a community, it is essential to allow sufficient time for all stakeholders to be informed, assess the potential implications, and provide valuable input. Doing so enables a broader and more diverse range of perspectives to be considered, leading to better-informed and well-rounded decisions.

The significance of this time allocation becomes evident when we examine the adverse consequences of shortening the process. First and foremost, curtailing the time for deliberation deprives residents and local councils of the opportunity to thoroughly understand the proposed changes, their consequences, and possible alternatives. Rushed decision-making will lead to uninformed choices that may not align with the needs and values of the community, potentially resulting in discontent, mistrust, and negative outcomes for residents.

Additionally, shortening the submission process hinders the ability of community members to engage and provide valuable feedback. Public participation is a fundamental aspect of democracy, and when this opportunity is limited, it diminishes the sense of ownership and inclusivity in the decision-making process.

Councils could not effectively consult with their ratepayers or undertake significant technical analysis for this bill. For previous bills in the three waters reform, which were considered over a more extended period, the technical and detailed feedback provided by submitters was valuable to the process. This was not able to occur for this bill.

Another result of the shortened time for consideration is a lack of clarity in certain areas. In particular, the levels of ministerial direction available and the function of some of the new elements of these reforms, such as the proposed financing agency.

It remains to be seen what ability the Minister will have to influence these entities, particularly concerning operations and future mergers. As we have expressed in the previous bill, we believe the communities on the ground and the ratepayers represented by councils will have minimal impact on the operation and management of their water, and this is even more concerning when the Minister may have more power over these aspects. The existence of a funding agency, which is entirely new to this reform, remains unclear in its function. Such an entity will, if it is created, deal with billions of dollars in borrowing between multiple complicated entities. The lack of detail or plans for this entity is highly problematic and would have been clearer had the committee been afforded the time to consider it properly.

The defence offered by the Government for this is that the bill makes only minor changes, and while this is true for some aspects, like governance, it is not true for many others. The Government expects us to simultaneously accept that this bill is minor and does not warrant a complete select committee process, but also that they have listened to the public and fundamentally reshaped their reforms. The National Party is highly concerned about the level of scrutiny this bill has received and the lack of ability for the public to have input on it.

The opinion of the National Party is that this bill is being pushed through with this timeframe exclusively to ensure it is passed by the end of this parliamentary term while the Labour Party still has a majority. As a result, yet another bill is reported back to the House with minor amendments and a process that has prevented proper public scrutiny.

Despite the Government's insistence, there are other ways forward with the issues in water services delivery. Instead of adjusting the number of broken mega-entities, this bill should be focused on doing local water well. Proper, desperately needed reforms should focus on enshrining the things that work in the status quo, such as the strong local voice and ability to tailor services to the local context. Reforms should focus on making changes only where they enhance service delivery, like giving councils additional financing tools for managing their water and supporting their service delivery with strong and pragmatic regulations for consumer protection and water quality.

National will repeal the Water Services Entities Act that this bill amends within 100 days, if elected. We will restore local control of water and support councils to deliver water services with strict rules for assets and water quality and give them the tools to reach financial sustainability. This can all be done with local ownership as a bottom line.

ACT New Zealand differing view

ACT engaged constructively through the initial process established by the Government because there are real problems with three waters infrastructure which need to be solved.

The cost of provisioning three waters infrastructure under current funding and financing models is a barrier to land development and has increased the cost of a section far beyond increases in the cost of construction. This has led to a decrease in housing affordability compared to incomes, and a lack of land provisioned for urban development.

In addition, there has been consistent under-investment in existing underground pipe networks and wastewater infrastructure over many decades.

The current system is not up to scratch, but the Government's three waters reforms are not the answer. Communities and councils have roundly rejected the Government's three waters reform agenda again as shown by the responses to this latest bill that had over 96 percent of submitters against the reform.

Problems with this bill

This bill is the latest in a series which seeks to reform the way water infrastructure is delivered and operated. However, this bill has had a matter of weeks for the committee to receive submissions when best practice acknowledges this should be much longer and consider the implications of changes proposed. ACT does not believe that adequate consideration has been afforded to this bill.

Despite the limited time frame to consider the bill, the Labour majority insisted on inserting clauses which would require the Department of Internal Affairs to appoint a representative to engage in collective bargaining with unions on future employees' terms and conditions, and should they not agree—included a new ministerial power that could direct them to do so. These entities might not yet be established and not had an opportunity to determine their strategy and objectives, yet they would still be bound to engage staff in roles and at salaries and wages which may not be appropriate for the scale, size, and location of an entity. ACT opposes this change, which was not supported by any policy or regulatory impact assessment and should be completely removed from the bill.

The bill proposes to amend the original Act passed only 8 months ago, which established four water entities against much community opposition. ACT believes that the development, transition, and implementation costs of the reforms are excessive, and that the reform objectives could have been achieved at much lower financial cost.

By setting clear regulatory directions for local government and providing for additional funding through innovative infrastructure delivery models such as those allowed for under the Infrastructure Funding and Financing Act, the reform objectives could be delivered in a more practical and less divisive way.

The key proposal of this bill is that rather than 4 Water Service Entities there should now be 10. The Minister and officials accept that is less efficient and does not achieve the economic benefits that four entities were expected to, as economies of scale are reduced. Many of the policy changes were described by officials as a means to “claw back efficiencies”.

Although this undermines the intent of the policy to which the original Act gives effect—to make water services more affordable over time—the Minister claims this is an acceptable and necessary cost. ACT does not agree that the cost is warranted in order to give local councils, who own the existing assets, a greater level of influence and control over the new entities their assets will be transferred to.

ACT believes there are other ways to make sure that councils retain control over their existing assets—don’t take them in the first place.

However, because the Act which this bill amends already confiscates the assets, ACT would instead seek to improve this bill in the following ways:

- only council representatives should have voting rights on regional representative groups (RRGs)
- allocate councils representation on each entity RRG in accordance with their population, and in line with provisions of the original Act which provide for councils to have one share per 50,000 residents
- drop the 50/50 iwi Māori co-governance requirement for RRGs.

ACT proposes that iwi Māori should continue to have representation on RRGs but that be limited to giving advice on matters where Treaty settlements identify a specific duty or obligation in an entity’s service area.

ACT does not agree that Māori have special rights and interests in three waters assets built after 1840 over and above those as ratepayers within their respective communities of interest. These communities are already represented by elected members of local councils in each city, district, and region, and Māori voters have suffrage equal to any other voter in local government elections.

The former Minister of Local Government Nanaia Mahuta, the original sponsor of the three waters reforms, confirmed that ACT's approach is correct.

In reply to a written question from ACT:

7396 (2022). Simon Court to the Minister of Local Government (16 Mar 2022): Does the Minister Believe that Māori have rights and interests in Three Waters assets built after 1840, and if so, why?

Hon Nanaia Mahuta (Minister of Local Government) replied: To my knowledge Māori have not expressed rights and interests in three waters assets over and above those as ratepayers within their respective communities of interest.

The bill proposes a new Water Services Funding Agency to raise debt to fund water infrastructure, and which will be more highly leveraged at least 4 to 6 times, and potentially 6 to 9 times revenue. The committee heard that this comes with a much higher risk than current council debt and will incur higher interest costs and a lower credit rating than councils typically have now.

ACT agrees that councils and their council controlled organisations should have access to a much wider range of funding and financing options, beyond that provided for in the Act and the amendments proposed in this bill. Where it is necessary to achieve balance sheet separation to allow for higher ratios of debt to revenue than allowed by the current Local Government Funding Agency limit of 2.8 times, then councils should be encouraged to use other methods to raise debt for new assets and upgrades to existing networks, such as special purpose vehicles allowed under the Infrastructure Funding and Financing Act (IFFA).

Many submitters noted the intent of the community priority statements was positive but in practice was likely to add limited value, and would not materially improve community voice, compared to the weight that Te Mana o Te Wai statements made by Māori would have under this legislation. We agree and is another example of additional and unnecessary red-tape.

The boundaries of some entities have not taken account of the local government boundaries and the wishes of some councils to join different entities. For example, the Nelson Marlborough Tasman entity excludes Seddon and Murchison which are in that regional council area, because the Minister and officials believe the Government should accept that the need to observe the Ngāi Tahu takiwā boundary takes precedence over the need to provide local control over water service.

The delayed time frame for implementation is now 1 July 2026 with the exception of the Northern entity taking Northland and Auckland council's assets. This is two years later than the original date of 1 July 2024 which creates uncertainty and risk for local councils. The committee heard that councils are very concerned that during this time frame they will need to undertake upgrades and provide for new infrastructure, taking on debt and incurring costs which they are uncertain can be recovered.

Whangarei District Council advised the committee they would also suffer a credit downgrade and would be materially worse off because of having their assets transferred to the Northern Entity. This will affect their ability to borrow to fund community assets and increase rates and other costs to ratepayers.

The Government proposed “Better off/No Worse off” funding in the original scope of the reform in 2021 to cover councils’ stranded overheads and other costs not able to be recovered as a result of transferring assets to an entity.

The committee heard from officials that the funding offer has since been withdrawn by the Government in order to cover the extended cost of the transition. Officials estimated the reforms will now cost up to $3 billion, an increase of around $1 billion over original estimates.

The committee heard that the additional costs include paying salaries for three chief executives recruited to the original four entities who remain in the employment of the Department of Internal Affairs despite not necessarily having future employment in any of the entities.

That is an outrageous waste of taxpayer funds and shows complete disrespect to councils which have relied on promises from senior Labour Government Ministers when forming their view on the reform proposals, and when engaging with their communities on the costs and benefits.

There are real problems with drinking water quality in some communities, failing wastewater networks and sewage overflows into rivers and onto beaches. None of these problems are solved by trying to force co-government structures on to a high risk three waters delivery model.

The focus must be on ensuring New Zealanders have access to safe drinking water and high-quality infrastructure for storm and wastewater.

ACT opposes this bill, and should we be a part of a future Government we will seek to repeal it and replace Labour’s reform with ACT’s alternative.

ACT’s alternative three waters plan

ACT’s water infrastructure plan would:

- provide for councils to enter voluntary “shared services” agreements, gaining the benefits of scale, while retaining local ownership and control
- establish long term 30-year central government–local government partnership agreements to plan water infrastructure upgrades tailored to specific regions
- establish public–private partnerships to attract investment from financial entities such as KiwiSaver funds, ACC, iwi investment funds, etc.
- expand the exemption from domestic supply for a single dwelling to also include all small water suppliers supplying fewer than 30 endpoint users.

We can improve the current system, but we don’t need to do so through state-mandated centralisation and allowing some people to have more influence than others based on their ethnicity.

ACT's plan will better balance community control of water assets alongside a plan for levelling up the necessary infrastructure to ensure safety and efficient water allocation.

Committee process

The Water Services Entities Amendment Bill was referred to the committee on 22 June 2023. We invited the Minister for Local Government to provide an initial briefing on the bill. They did so on 3 July 2023, and again on 10 July 2023.

We called for submissions on the bill with a closing date of 5 July 2023. We received and considered submissions from 1,997 interested groups and individuals. We heard oral evidence from 58 submitters, comprising 30 organisations and 28 individuals, at hearings via videoconference.

We received advice on the bill from Te Tari Taiwhenua—Department of Internal Affairs, and our independent adviser, Amelia East. The Office of the Clerk provided advice on the bill's legislative quality. The Parliamentary Counsel Office assisted with legal drafting. The Regulations Review Committee reported to us on the powers contained in clauses 5, 8, and 15, and Schedule 2 of the bill; and section 3 of the Act.
