empowered to borrow, in manner and subject as thereby provided, any sum or respective sums of money, not 10 exceeding in the aggregate three hundred and thirty-five thousand seven hundred pounds, and to apply the sums so borrowed in and about the construction and carrying-out of such of the works referred to in the Napier Harbour Board Loan Act, 1884, and the Napier Harbour Board Loan Act, 1892 (in the said Act and hereinafter 15 referred to as the principal Acts), as are more particularly referred to in the First Schedule to the said Act: And whereas the poll of ratepayers required by the said Act to be taken was duly taken and carried, and the Board has been duly empowered thereby, and 20

 acting on the advice of the engineers who were its advisers in designing the original scheme of works and prepared the plans therefor, has decided to abandon the construction of the said particular work as being unnecessary and superfluous, and, acting on the like 25
 advice, and with the approval in all things of the Marine Department, to devote the sum of seventy thousand pounds allocated as aforesaid to the said particular work, together with the sum of fifty thousand pounds representing the employment subsidy payable in respect 30 of the whole of the said works, to the construction of other necessary works in connection with the general scheme of works (other than the said particular work) contemplated by the said Act, including the construction of an additional wharf (not included in the list of works set out in the First Schedule to the said Act) in concrete 35
 instead of in timber:
