Amendment No. 1: S.R. 1962/96

Amendment No. 2: S.R. 1964/113

EXPLANATORY NOTE

This note is not part of the regulations, but is intended to indicate their general effect.

Under the Customs Regulations 1959, goods partially manufactured in a Commonwealth country do not qualify for entry under the British Preferential Tariff unless the final process of manufacture has been performed in that country and at least half the factory or works cost of the finished article consists of expenditure in material that is the produce of Commonwealth countries or labour performed in Commonwealth countries.

The effect of the amendments made by these regulations is that any such goods imported into the Cook Islands will qualify for entry under the British Preferential Tariff if only one-quarter of the factory or works cost is of Commonwealth origin, so long as the final process of manufacture has been so performed.
