"Clinical case of tuberculosis", in relation to any cattle, means—

"(b) Any other animal the health or condition of which, in the opinion of any Tuberculin Testing Officer or other Inspector, indicates that the animal is likely to be affected with tuberculosis, and which, solely for the purpose of confirming that opinion, is tested with the tuberculin test:

"Reactor", in relation to any cattle, means any animal which gives a positive reaction to a tuberculin test, not being a tuberculin test made in respect of a clinical case of tuberculosis, and which, in the opinion of the Tuberculin Testing Officer who tested the animal, is affected with tuberculosis:"
