EXPLANATORY NOTE

This note is not part of the regulations, but is intended to indicate their general effect.

These regulations have 4 effects. First, they empower the Director-General to deem to be a side school a school that falls outside the present definition in the principal regulations. Secondly, they provide a definition of the term “sixth form student”. Thirdly, they authorise the appointment of careers advisers at secondary schools with fewer than 200 pupils. Fourthly, they make clear that where a careers adviser is freed from normal teaching duties, the school concerned receives a corresponding time allowance for staffing purposes.
