Protected Disclosures (Protection of Whistleblowers) Bill

Proposed amendments for the consideration of the Committee of the whole House

Key:

- this is inserted text
- ~~this is deleted text~~

Note: This Supplementary Order Paper shows amendments to the Bill that are being proposed by the Minister for the purposes of consideration in Committee of the whole House. This document does—

- NOT have official status in terms of unamended text
- NOT have the status of an as-reported version of the Bill.

Explanatory note

This Supplementary Order Paper makes some minor policy changes, several of which were recommended by the select committee considering the Bill (the Education and Workforce Committee).

The original commencement date of the Bill has now passed, and so a new commencement date is inserted into clause 2.

Clause 10, about the meaning of serious wrongdoing, is changed to explicitly include behaviour that is a serious risk to the health or safety of any individual.

Clause 10 is also changed to exclude people with (only) statutory functions, duties, or powers. The clarification is to avoid this part of the definition of serious wrongdoing applying more broadly than intended, for example, to the performance of statutory duties of private company directors.

Clause 11A replaces and expands clause 11(5). It concerns those who disclose supporting information. As with the current Act, disclosers of supporting information are given the protections of the Act as if their disclosure is a protected disclosure. The expansion in this Supplementary Order Paper will protect people who provide supporting information because they have to. Now, the protections will apply even if a person is required to disclose.

Supporting information is a narrow category. It is information that may not itself be about serious wrongdoing in the discloser's organisation. For example, extra information that tends to support the main disclosure but is about a pattern of behaviour rather than itself revealing wrongdoing. Or, as other examples, it could concern responses to the wrongdoing or the effect of the wrongdoing.

Clause 13 is changed so that disclosures go to the Speaker (and not a Minister) if they are about wrongdoing in or by the office of the Office of the Clerk or Parliamentary Service. This adds to the change made to the Bill at select committee that disclosures about officers of Parliament go to the Speaker.

Clause 16 is changed to provide a further exception to the obligation to keep confidential information that might identify a discloser. The new exception is where there are reasonable grounds to believe that the release of identifying information is essential to an investigation by law enforcement or regulatory agency for the purpose of law enforcement. This replaces the law enforcement exception previously located in clause 17 for information provided under official information legislation. The change brings identifying information provided to law enforcement under the same confidentiality obligations and rules about consulting and notifying the discloser. The change also provides for complaints to be made under the Privacy Act 2020 (in the same way as for complaints about other releases of identifying information).

Clause 16A is changed so that there need not be harm shown if information is released that might identify a discloser. This change means that such a release is an interference with the discloser's privacy (even if no harm resulted). Part 5 of the Privacy Act 2020 applies with all necessary modifications. Part 5 provides remedies for an interference with privacy, including damages.

Proposed amendments to
Protected Disclosures (Protection of Whistleblowers)
Bill

SOP No 131

Clause 17 is adjusted to strengthen the protection for confidentiality in the case of an official information request.

Clause 22 is updated to clearly provide that legal means cannot be used to prevent the disclosure of supporting information. Just as with a protected disclosure itself, the Bill provides that supporting information may be disclosed despite any agreement, contract, or internal procedure that apparently prevents disclosure. The effect of clause 22 is that disclosers cannot be muzzled (for example) by a confidential settlement or non-disclosure agreement about previous wrongdoing.

Clause 27(2)(c)(iv) is deleted as it duplicates clause 27(2)(aa).

Some further examples of concerns, along with further examples of which agency might be a relevant appropriate authority, are added to Schedule 2.

Minor drafting clarifications, cross-reference updates, and related changes have also been made in this Supplementary Order Paper.

Departmental disclosure statement

The Public Service Commission considers that a departmental disclosure statement is not required to be prepared for this Supplementary Order Paper.
